

HEALTHY WORKING™ – AWARD-WINNING ERGONOMICS SOFTWARE

Healthy Working is a science-based software tool that provides employers with the means to educate and train their employees, especially those in office or desk-based work environments, to better manage their own safety and wellness. Customized to the needs of your workers and scalable across multi-level organizations, Healthy Working empowers workers with knowledge that will help them improve posture and other physiological factors that can contribute to increased risk of injury and absenteeism.

Healthy Working features a three-tiered structure designed to reduce risk and the associated costs while keeping employees engaged at their workstations—no classroom time or missed hours are necessary.

- Ergonomics e-learning and self-assessment: Workers receive individualized e-learning content based on the specific requirements and attributes of their job. Content helps workers gauge their ergonomic health and helps tailor the software to the needs of each employee, reinforcing strong ergonomic practices that keep workers healthy. Up to 60% of injury risk can be resolved with just this stage of the software.
- Communication with employees: Between video-based stretching exercises, smartphone integration, and real-time feedback and reminders, Healthy Working keeps in touch with your employees throughout their shifts, ensuring workers are staying on top of their health and always following best ergonomic practices.
- PACE: The management side of Healthy Working helps administrators run safety programs through the software to address outstanding risk issues that may lead to injuries among workers. With a secure database, a simple yet powerful workflow engine, and task management tools, your team will have access to all relevant worker data in one convenient location, making regular executive reports a breeze.

Available in several languages and built to adhere to international health, data, and security standards, Healthy Working is an all-in-one software solution that will help enterprises dramatically cut costs associated with injuries, from reduced workers' compensation claims to higher productivity.
